

As a baroque music specialist, it is very important to me that media have the possibility of exposing less commercial artforms to a public that is terribly undereducated in all but the biggest and best funded music.